PHONE LOVE MAKING.

"Love's young dream and the glamor thereof had apparently carried away the better judgment of a somewhat mature woman—who, according to her schedule of years, should certainly have known better—when she telephoned the young man of her heart during business hours to inform him that he was 'her al-mond blossom in a world of gray!' Admitting that the metaphor was of a fantastic and unusual type, that was poor consolation to the young man when he lost his job," says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. "And, oh, how he blessed the mature woman who was the means of the disruption! If she had only heard what he said about her, she never, never would have touched a telephone again.

"Whenever I hear sundry fair maidens billing and cooing into telephones during those hours in which the average man is, or ought to be engaged in earning his daily bread, I know that sooner or later trouble is coming for those indolent maidens," the Ledger continues. "For no man under the sun likes to be billed and cooed over at the wrong time, and assuredly office hours are much the wrong time!

"But you can't instill any such practical information into the heads of the thoughtless fair ones. They have to learn by sage experience, and sage experience is a hard teacher, as the girls find when 'Billy' or 'Johnnie' or 'Tommy' decides that he's had about enough of this telephone love making, and that it's better to keep a good office job than a silly fiancée, who hasn't sufficient common sense to know that there are times and seasons for all things, and that the office telephone, with the exchange girl eagerly drinking in every word, isn't the right place for ardent outpourings!

"A certain woman of the second giggleshood has a mania for billing and cooing into the telephone at all untimely hours of the day. 'Hello, Mr. Smith,' you will hear her murmur, if you happen to call at her house in the morning. 'I just rang up to ask if you think it is going to rain today? You are such a wonderful weather prophet! You don't think so? Oh, I'm so glad, as I've promised to meet my sister in town. Thanks ever so much!'

"Or the performance will be of this order: 'Hello, Tommy, is that you? I've got two theatre tickets for tonight. Oh, you have an engagement! I'm so sorry! Do you think your friend, Mr. Brown, would care to go? What is his phone number? Oh, you don't know? I'll ring you up again in half an hour, if in the meantime you'll find it out for me.'

"Remember, girls, that where his office hours are concerned, the less you telephone that young man in whom you are so particularly interested, the more will be your chance of ultimately bringing him to the point! And, conversely, the girl who is hot on the trail, or, in other words, unduly ardent on the wire, is the one who is going to get badly left in the end."

A little education is a useless thing.

When a pretty woman passes a plate glass show window she doesn't look at the goods in it, she looks at the reflection of those she's wearing.

No, Caline, all grass widows don't have hay fever.

REFORMING TOBACCO.

Because the department of agriculture has succeeded in reducing the percentage of nicotine in tobacco without affecting its flavor, perhaps it is not too much to hope that before long smokers and chewers may enjoy the weed to their heart's content without being frequently warned by well-meaning friends and reformers that they are digging early graves for themselves, says the Savannah Morning News.

And it will be less worth while to point to centenarians who never smoked or chewed and assert that if they had taken to the weed early in life they likely wouldn't have lived to be older than eighty. If nicotine is banished from tobacco without interfering with the delights of smoking it may be that some good souls will regret it, for then tobacco using will be no longer a bad habit; that is, it will be no worse habit than going to the movies or chewing gum.

Laws against the sale of cigarettes may then be repealed, there may be no more talk of tobacco heart, and the only remaining complaints against the weed will be from those who do not like the thirty-horse power odor of an old pipe and object to the expectation that accompanies smoking and chewing. These are the lesser complaints against it nowadays. The more important one is that it attacks health, a complaint that is based on the nicotine in it. Remove the nicotine, make smoking and chewing harmless and a great reform will have been accomplished, not by reforming men—to say nothing of a lot of women smokers—but by reforming the weed itself.

Maybe there is a deeper purpose in the work of the department than merely to make tobacco less harmful. There already are some people who believe that tobacco prohibition laws should be passed. If after alcohol is banished from the country tobacco should next be attacked, un-

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. Richmond, 199 Waldo Street, Providence, R. I.

A Minister's Wife Writes:

CLOQUET, MINN.—"I have suffered very much with irregularities, pain and inflammation, but your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has made me well and I can recommend the same to all that are troubled with these complaints."—Mrs. JENNIE AKERMAN, c/o Rev. K. AKERMAN, Cloquet, Minnesota.

From Mrs. J. D. Murdoch, Quincy, Mass.

SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living."—Mrs. JANE D. MURDOCH, 25 Gordon St., South Quincy, Mass.

less by that time it was made harmless, and it, too, should be driven out, the government's revenues, already hard hit by the loss of an income from alcohol, would be still further and very greatly reduced, and it would be necessary to find something else to tax. Tobacco may be expected to pay more than $75,000,000 a year in taxes, and of course the government doesn't want to lose that money. Perhaps it is merely looking a long way ahead in an effort to so reform the weed that public sentiment will let it alone.

Now if the department could only find a way to make whiskey and beer soft drinks, against which there would be no prohibition sentiment, there would be no danger of the cutting off of another source of revenue, upwards off $230,000,000 a year. With both alcoholic drinks and tobacco outlawed the government would have to tax other things to make up for a loss of revenue of more than $300,000,000 annually. No wonder it is anxious to take the bite out of tobacco and would be glad to take the "kick" out of whiskey.

NOT A DISSENTING VOTE ON THE "SHARK" BILL

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 10.—Representative Shapiro's bill, H. R. 111, intended to strengthen the business of collectors of judgments interest, was passed by a vote of 60 to 0 in the House today morning.

Mr. Copeland of Jefferson attempted to exempt companies having a paid up capital of $25,000 but was defeated. When the bill was called many members called for an immediate vote. More interest was manifested in the bill than in any called recently.

Mr. Shapiro when the bill was passed asked unanimous consent to call up his anti-trust bill. Mr. Copeland objected but the house on motion of Mr. Shapiro suspended the rules and called the bill for immediate consideration.

Mr. Shapiro offered a substitute which made the bill non-expiring. He read affidavits to show that money lenders had extorted money from the poorer classes.

One was from Sylvester Henderson, negro of Vanderbilt which said he had paid more than fifty dollars on a fifty dollar loan the interest being $1.50 a month.

Mr. Shapiro related the bill was introduced only at the loan shark's.

It was an effort to put the extortion out of business. He stated that he had tried to force loan sharks by putting the interest rate at two per cent a month.

Mr. Walden of Morgan said he had long looked for the day when he could vote against loan sharks.

Mr. Chamberlain of Linton said he had long looked for the day when he could vote against loan sharks. He had been a lobbyist for the loan sharks for $50,000 to defeat the measure.

Mr. Copeland offered an amendment providing that the bill should not affect companies having a capital stock of $25,000 but it was laid on the table overwhelmingly.

Mrs. Walden wife of J. H. Walden is in the city the mother of her sister Mrs. W. J. Williams and Mrs. Reed.

Bill Fowler of Ashford was here today.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dothan Eagle

I note your article in yesterday's paper under the caption "What is the matter with the Dothan Business Men?" This is a reason for the condition you refer to. What is it? I think it is partially at least a matter of psychology—a condition of mind. President Wilson was right when he said that prosperity and adversity was largely a condition of mind—start a panic and every one will follow—start a wave of enthusiasm, of hopefulness, of prosperity and most people will fall in line and the movement continues to gather momentum. This is the trouble in Dothan just now. We have the bull with us and most people know that it can only be successfully combatted by organized effort and seeing nothing definite and tangible being accomplished along this line they are drawing in their shells and consequently trade, industry and advertising is curtailed.

It is totally wrong, therefore, to totally wrong, it is not wrong way to meet the situation. We have "What are we doing to prepare for next year?" I understand the earnest and unselfish efforts that have been made recently by some of the business men here to get together in organization that can promote and develop markets for agricultural products. Next year we have not only a partial success. It looks to me as if every business man who expects to remain here would run his hands steadily in this movement. I do not want to make comparisons, but one of the men in Southeast Alabama is building a packing house, another is building a plant to consume vegetable beans in large quantities, another place has established markets for potatoes and scrap. Do you realize what this means?

For of course as the security for the future, but it helps wonderfully RIGHT NOW. It brings into play Mr. Wilson's theory of "state of mind" suppose for instance that it were to be known all over the country that an organization had been effected here and that behind this was the united town of Dothan banks, merchants, cotton and rice factors, all and the markets would be arranged by next spring summer and fall enabling the farmers to plant potatoes, sugar cane, potatoes, corn and raise hogs and that this organization would have a man to direct to assist instruction you would see an instantaneous change in Dothan and in the county. Possession would disappear with the realization that diversified crops means more money and more prosperity, the farmer would begin to consider buying the stove or the suits, clothes or the shoes, more would begin to circulate, not of being hoarded, the sun would begin to shine, adversity would begin to pick up, thus we would begin to move along. What not let us do this.

You say the paper at Troy carries three times as much advertising as the Eagle. Well, I say has built a plan to make a food from school books and other products and is now building a small packing plant. The merchants and farmers are cheerful they feel like advertising. Dothan is the best town of the bunch has more natural advantages to be aware, but we depend upon past achievements at the present time we are not doing anything in a comprehensive way along the line of preparation for next year and as not the attitude here and is not the attitude here and is not the attitude here.

(Katherine Tynan in the Living Age.)

I am the pillars of the house;
The keystone of the arch am I.
Take me away, and roof and wall
Would fall to ruin utterly.

I am the fire upon the hearth,
I am the light of the good sun.
I am the heat that warms the earth,
Which else were colder than a stone.

At me the children warm their

I am their light of love alive.
Without me cold the hearthstone

Nor could the precious child-

I am the twist that holds together
The children in its sacred ring.
Their knot of love, from whose

No lost child goes a-wandering.

I am the house from floor to

"Carmen"

When English, French, German, Austrian and Russian "honors" and "decorations" are being discarded by the other fellow, who happens to be across the battle-line from the donor, and there is loud talk of hoventing each other's literature as a war measure, let us turn our ears hopefully to "Carmen," musically the most entertaining of all operas. This French work by a very good Frenchman named Bizet score its five hundredth performance in Berlin in January, when this war was six months bitter. There have been more productions of Carmen in Germany during the past few years than of any of the Wagner operas.

The war hatred may divorce the German from the delights of French literature, but he still loves his "Carmen," French as it is. So do all the other civilized countries that appreciate opera. In New York this past season "Carmen" has been described by a musical authority as "a furor, a craze, a madness." We venture to guess that if on any one opera of all those now enjoyed could be retained, popular choice would name "Carmen."

Always a Clean Napkin—

At a pension table in Florence a lady on folding up her napkin was seen to slip it into an oblong case of linen with two snap fasteners, her initials were embroidered. Instantly this was seen to be the only way for an unrelated lot of people to keep their napkins inviolate, for few boarding houses at home or abroad furnish clean ones at every meal. Even if a napkin-ring makes tolerably sure that you receive your own napkin a second time, it does not protect it from the possibly dirty fingers of servants when setting at the table, or from the dust of the room or from contact with other napkins in a drawer. People who are dainty and "particular" in their tastes will welcome this device for the home table as well.

These napkin cases are on sale in European shops, but not, far as known, in our own country. As a home-made Easter gift it will be gladly welcomed and it meets the requirement of being absolutely new.

For two napkin-cases, take a quarter yard of yard-wide fifty-cent linen of medium weave, and cut it in two, lengthwise. These pieces, measuring eighteen inches by nine, are the first to be finished with a quarter-inch hem on all four sides. This may be quickly done on a sewing machine, but it is quite worth while to draw a few threads and hem-stitch it. Now measure from one end seven inches and turn it up for the pocket, fastening the sides together with neat over-stitch. The rest of the strip forms the flap, on which may be embroidered the initials of the person for whom the gift is designed.—Mrs. M. H. A. Roland Park, Md., in The Delinquent.

Cobwebs Prove That Cold Winter is Ahead—

Dothan, Ga.—Georgians would do well to lay in a large supply of coal for, in spite of the excessive heat of the summer, the approaching winter is bound to establish a record for all-round severity. "Aunt Jane" Barksdale has read the signs, and "Aunt Jane," who is an old, antebellum negress, knows. She has examined the spider webs and has found them unusually thick and tough, the webs being similar in texture to those found the summer preceding the coldest winter she ever experienced, during war times. Torn away, the webs will be re-formed on the morrow. It is an infallible sign of a severe winter.

THE PASSING SHOW.

Emporia (Kan.) Gazette

Twenty years ago there were a hundred handsome buggies in Emporia, a dozen of which were drawn by two handsome horses each. Those buggies came from barns on alley lots, back of homes where the family took one good standard magazine sometimes two—Harper's and Scribner's or the Century, one weekly—the Outlook, the Outlook, the Independent, or the Catholic Advance, and the children had the Youth's Companion and the St. Nicholas. Chicken and mashed potatoes formed the main pieces of the state dinner, and the gayest thing that came into the life of this section of the community was Tom Keene in "Richard III" or Modjeska in "The Taming of the Shrew." Ten years ago came the ten-cent magazine and the phonograph. Stacks of ten-cent magazines loomed up on the counters of the book stores and news stands; McClure's led. Every body's followed a close second, the Cosmopolitan came third, and with the magazine, with the "best seller,"—the rather cheap but respectable book, that sold by the hundreds of thousands. Those twins of literature lasted four or five years, they "grew in beauty side by side" and then faded like the stars of the morning.

Today the magazine stack in the book and news stands is a miserable little wart, compared with its former grandeur. The book that sells fifty thousand copies does exceedingly well, and the average of a good book of fiction will run around 25,000. For the best known of the season's offering. People are riding out in their automobiles, and also they are going to the movies. People no longer get their thrills from the magazines, but from taking the hill on the box, and from the kings and queens of the films. Times change. We are a restless people. Only the Saturday Evening Post persists

In another ten years people will tire of taking their places in cars, and at the movies. Cars and movies will be in the scheme of things only in their proper relation to the universe, as the ten-cent magazines are now. But it certainly is a lot of fun to watch the passing show; to see the everlasting change that is the only stable thing in the world.
